In Jane Austen’s novel Mansfield Park, an almost imperceptible smile from potential suitor Henry Crawford causes the protagonist Fanny Price to blush; her embarrassment grows when she suspects that he is aware of it. This moment—in which Fanny not only infers Henry’s mental state through his gestures, but also infers that he is drawing inferences about her mental state—illustrates what literary scholar George Butte calls “deep intersubjectivity,” a technique for representing interactions between consciousnesses through which Austen’s novels derive much of their social and psychological drama.

Which choice best describes the function of the underlined sentence in the text as a whole?

- It states a claim about Austen’s skill at representing psychological complexity that is reinforced by an example presented

A. in the following sentence.
- It advances an interpretation of an Austen protagonist who is contrasted with protagonists from other Austen novels

B. cited in the following sentence.
- It describes a recurring theme in Austen’s novels that is the focus of a literary scholar’s analysis summarized in the

C. following sentence.
- It provides a synopsis of an interaction in an Austen novel that illustrates a literary concept discussed

D. sentence.

Mathematician Claude Shannon is widely regarded as a foundational figure in information theory. His most important paper, “A Mathematical Theory of Communication,” published in 1948 when he was employed at Bell Labs, utilized a concept called a “binary digit” (shortened to “bit”) to measure the amount of information in any signal and determine the fastest rate at which information could be transmitted while still being reliably decipherable. Robert Gallagher, one of Shannon’s colleagues, said that the bit was “[Shannon’s] discovery, and from it the whole communications revolution has sprung.”

Which choice best describes the overall structure of the text?

- It presents a theoretical concept, illustrates how the name of the concept has changed, and shows how the name has

A. entered common usage.
- It introduces a respected researcher, describes an aspect of his work, and suggests why the work is historically

B. significant.
- It names the company where an important mathematician worked, details the mathematician’s career at the company,

C. and provides an example of the recognition he received there.
- D. It mentions a paper, offers a summary of the paper’s findings, and presents a researcher’s commentary on the paper.

Text 1

Fossils of the hominin Australopithecus africanus have been found in the Sterkfontein Caves of South Africa, but assigning an age to the fossils is challenging because of the unreliability of dating methods in this context. The geology of Sterkfontein has caused soil layers from different periods to mix, impeding stratigraphic dating, and dates cannot be reliably imputed from those of nearby animal bones since the bones may have been relocated by flooding.

Text 2

Archaeologists used new cosmogenic nuclide dating techniques to reevaluate the ages of A. africanus fossils found in the Sterkfontein Caves. This technique involves analyzing the cosmogenic nucleotides in the breccia—the matrix of rock fragments immediately surrounding the fossils. The researchers assert that this approach avoids the potential for misdating associated with assigning ages based on Sterkfontein’s soil layers or animal bones.

Based on the texts, how would the researchers in Text 2 most likely respond to the underlined portion in Text 1?

- They would emphasize the fact that the A. africanus fossils found in the Sterkfontein Caves may have been corrupted in

A. some way over the years.
- They would contend that if analyses of surrounding layers and bones in the Sterkfontein Caves were combined, then the

B. dating of the fossils there would be more accurate.
- They would argue that their techniques are better suited than other methods to the unique challenges posed by the

C. Sterkfontein Caves.
- They would claim that cosmogenic nuclide dating is reliable in the context of the Sterkfontein Caves because it is applied

D. to the fossils directly.

Text 1

Films and television shows commonly include a long list of credits naming the people involved in a production. Credit sequences may not be exciting, but they generally ensure that everyone’s contributions are duly acknowledged. Because they are highly standardized, film and television credits are also valuable to anyone researching the careers of pioneering cast and crew members who have worked in the mediums.

Text 2

Video game scholars face a major challenge in the industry’s failure to consistently credit the artists, designers, and other contributors involved in making video games. Without a reliable record of which people worked on which games, questions about the medium’s development can be difficult to answer, and the accomplishments of all but its best-known innovators can be difficult to trace.

Based on the texts, how would the author of Text 1 most likely respond to the discussion in Text 2?

- By recommending that the scholars mentioned in Text 2 consider employing the methods regularly used by film and television researchers
- By pointing out that credits have a different intended purpose in film and television than in the medium addressed by the scholars mentioned in Text 2
- By suggesting that the scholars mentioned in Text 2 rely more heavily on credits as a source of information than film and television researchers do
- By observing that a widespread practice in film and television largely prevents the kind of problem faced by the scholars mentioned in Text 2

According to Indian economist and sociologist Radhakamal Mukerjee (1889–1968), the Eurocentric concepts that informed early twentieth-century social scientific methods—for example, the idea that all social relations are reducible to struggles between individuals—had little relevance for India. Making the social sciences more responsive to Indians’ needs, Mukerjee argued, required constructing analytical categories informed by India’s cultural and ecological circumstances. Mukerjee thus proposed the communalist “Indian village” as the ideal model on which to base Indian economic and social policy.

Which choice best describes the overall structure of the text?

- The text recounts Mukerjee’s early training in the social scientific disciplines and then lists social policies whose implementation Mukerjee oversaw.

The text mentions some of Mukerjee’s economic theories and then traces their impact on other Indian social scientists of the twentieth century.

The text presents Mukerjee’s critique of the social sciences and then provides an example of his attempts to address issues he identified in his critique.

The text explains an influential economic theory and then demonstrates how that theory was more important to Mukerjee’s work than other social scientists have acknowledged.

Text 1

Like the work of Ralph Ellison before her, Toni Morrison’s novels feature scenes in which characters deliver sermons of such length and verbal dexterity that for a time, the text exchanges the formal parameters of fiction for those of oral literature. Given the many other echoes of Ellison in Morrison’s novels, both in structure and prose style, these scenes suggest Ellison’s direct influence on Morrison.

Text 2

In their destabilizing effect on literary form, the sermons in Morrison’s works recall those in Ellison’s. Yet literature by Black Americans abounds in moments where interpolated speech erodes the division between oral and written forms that literature in English has traditionally observed. Morrison’s use of the sermon is attributable not only to the influence of Ellison but also to a community-wide strategy of resistance to externally imposed literary conventions.

Based on the texts, how would the author of Text 2 most likely characterize the underlined claim in Text 1?

- As failing to consider Ellison’s and Morrison’s equivalent uses of the sermon within the wider cultural context in which
- A. they wrote
 - B. As misunderstanding the function of sermons in novels by Black American writers other than Ellison and Morrison
 - C. As disregarding points of structural and stylistic divergence between the works of Ellison and those of Morrison
 - As being indebted to the tradition of resisting literary conventions that privilege written forms, such as novels, over
 - D. sermons and other oral forms

Text 1

Virginia Woolf’s 1928 novel Orlando is an oddity within her body of work. Her other major novels consist mainly of scenes of everyday life and describe their characters’ interior states in great detail, whereas Orlando propels itself through a series of fantastical events and considers its characters’ psychology more superficially. Woolf herself sometimes regarded the novel as a minor work, even admitting once that she “began it as a joke.”

Text 2

Like Woolf’s other great novels, Orlando portrays how people’s memories inform their experience of the present. Like those works, it examines how people navigate social interactions shaped by gender and social class. Though it is lighter in tone—more entertaining, even—this literary “joke” nonetheless engages seriously with the themes that motivated the four or five other novels by Woolf that have achieved the status of literary classics.

- Based on the texts, how would the author of Text 2 most likely respond to the assessment of Orlando presented in Text 1?
- A. By conceding that Woolf’s talents were best suited to serious novels but asserting that the humor in Orlando is often effective
 - B. By agreeing that Orlando is less impressive than certain other novels by Woolf but arguing that it should still be regarded as a classic
 - C. By acknowledging that Orlando clearly differs from Woolf’s other major novels but insisting on its centrality to her body of work nonetheless
 - D. By concurring that the reputation of Orlando as a minor work has led readers to overlook this novel but maintaining that the reputation is unearned

Raymond Antrobus, an accomplished poet and writer of prose, recently released his debut spoken word poetry album, The First Time I Wore Hearing Aids, in collaboration with producer Ian Brennan. The album contains both autobiographical and reflective pieces combining Antrobus’s spoken words with Brennan’s fragmented audio elements and pieces of music to convey how people who are deaf may experience sound, both its presence and absence. Some critics suggest that the album questions the function of sound in the world, highlighting that the experience of sound is multifaceted.

Which choice best describes the overall structure of the text?

- It introduces a collaborative spoken word poetry project, details the approach taken to produce the work, and then

A. provides an example of critique the album received upon release.
- It mentions a collection of spoken word poems, distinguishes one poem as being an exemplar on the album, and then

B. offers a summary of the subject matter of the whole collection.
- It summarizes the efforts to produce a collection of spoken word poems, presents biographies of two people who

C. worked on the album, and speculates about the meaning behind the poetry.
- It connects two artists to the same spoken word poetry project, explains the extent of their collaboration on each poem,

D. and then provides an overview of the technique used to produce the work.
